SERVICE AT ACADEMIC ORGANISATIONS

2017- 2020

Chair of the Northern Advanced Research Training Initiative (NARTI). NARTI is a network of 18 business and management schools in the north of England who collaborate to provide advanced research training for postgraduate and early career researchers. As NARTI Chair, I am responsible for leading strategic planning and delivery of strategic priorities; identifying and allocating resources; engaging in ongoing analysis of existing and emerging pockets of expertise in social science research skills and methods across all institutional members, so ensuring each member contributes fully to a widening and deepening of research excellence. I am also in charge of making connections with internationally-recognised scholars to run advanced specialist training; supporting the development of early-mid career researchers through programme design, delivery and evaluation; improving connectivity and communication with institutions, Deans and stakeholders and liaising with member institutions regarding previous years' activity and current membership subscription levels.

2016 -

Co-Chair of the International Business/International Management Special Interest Group of the British Academy of Management, UK. As a key feature of this role, I provide advice on behalf of BAM to respond and input into consultation requests from Research Councils and other major research funding bodies, such as the Academy of International Business, UKI; offer expertise in REF consultation processes with the learned societies; provide advice in nomination of the REF panel within the area of IB; and, serve as an IB subject expert. Second, due to my visibility in the IB field, I am asked to organize special panels, paper development workshops and training on Qualitative Research in the key academic IB events.

SERVICE AT LEEDS UNIVERSITY BUSINESS SCHOOL (LUBS)

2014-

Member of the Faculty Research Innovation Committee (FRIC)

I have served various roles in this committee throughout my academic journey at Leeds University Business School. I am currently the Research and Training Chair of the Faculty responsible for organising and delivering the strategy for research training and development of staff, early career and doctoral researchers at LUBS.

2014 - 2018

Director of Research for the International Business Division

Involves providing advice and support within the Division to enhance research activity; developing the mentoring scheme of the Division; fostering an environment for inter-disciplinary research; encouraging the exploitation of research opportunities and funds; offering effective skills training and development for staff and doctoral researchers.

2016 - 2018

Director of the Centre for International Business at the University of Leeds (CIBUL)

Responsible for developing and implementing the research strategy of the Centre for International Business at Leeds University Business School. This role will conclude this academic year.

2015 - 2017

Director & Co-Director of Leeds University Business School (LUBS) Graduate School (Served as Director of The Graduate School from Feb-Aug 2016)

Responsible for all aspects of the PhD experience at LUBS. Involves chairing the Faculty Research Scholarships Committee, the LUBS scholarship committee; communicating with different stakeholders at LUBS and liaising with the School's Marketing Manager to promote the research degree programme; communicating with (180) academic supervisors and (200) Doctoral students, balancing the needs of these two groups through systematic consultation.

2015 - 2017

Director of the PhD Programme for the International Business Division

Involves PhD recruitment in the IB division; management of the research degree experience within the Division; contribution to the professional and academic development of research students so as to enhance academic excellence within the IB Division.

SERVICE AT ARISTOTLE UNIVERSITY OF THESSALONIKI, GREECE

2011- 2014

Coordinator of the Doctoral Research Methods Training.

Involves the design, delivery and implementation of the Doctoral Research Methods course of the Department of Economics. It includes various activities including recruitment of specialised staff, preparation of the course schedule and syllabus, evaluation of Doctoral students reports and assignments etc.

2010 - 2014

Programme Director MSc in Logistics and Supply Chain Management.

Involves various activities such as recruiting prospective students, catering the needs of current students, representing the Programme at recruitment fairs, participating in student evaluation panels, recruiting industry visitors for the Programme, administering student course evaluation etc.

2012-2014

Member of the Department's Quality Assurance and Internal Evaluation Committee.

Involves the collection, analysis and interpretation of undergraduate and postgraduate course evaluation data. The Quality Assurance and Evaluation Committee holds a vital role in the development of the Departmental strategy.

INTERNATIONAL REPUTATION

My international reputation is manifested in the following ways:

- I am a known scholar in qualitative research and I am invited by world class Universities to teach and share my expertise in qualitative research in the context of IB/IE/IM disciplines.
